MARCH 2015

PRESIDENT'S CORNER

I'm tired of Winter and anxious to move on to Spring. We haven't had it as bad as much of the country and were teased with some beautiful days in February but I'm ready to move on to Spring full time. After being cooped up in the house it is wonderful to get out and reconnect with neighbors. Apparently others experienced a bit of cabin fever too as we had a huge turnout for the neighborhood dinner at Rancho Viejo, a lively NFNCC meeting, an informative POA meeting and a super fun time at our painting classes. Looking ahead into March we have our monthly NFNCC meeting, another POA meeting and a Mexican Dinner here in Harbor Point. I hope you get out and attend them all. It is time to plant our gardens, charge up the golf carts and cruise the neighborhood. Spring is when you open your front door in the morning to find a generous neighbor has left fresh vegetables or flower cuttings. The ducks have already started laying eggs in our house and the baby fawn will be arriving soon. Spring is an awakening, a time to go outside, enjoy the warm sunshine, appreciate nature and meet up with your friends and neighbors in Harbor Point. Kay

We would like to hear from you

NEIGHBORS UPDATE

OFFICE TIDBITS

By Lisa Risler Office Manager

The office has reduced their hours for the winter. It will be closed all Mondays until further notice.

We do have a e-mail address: hppo@windstream.net

Also, please come by the office if you need an updated 9-1-1 directory of those who have shared for the list.

This one is dated 2/1/15. Pat Rogers does a great job but cannot update or add people if they don't contact her. Her number is on the directory list.

There is a loss & found at the Gate. Phone number is 936-594-2099

We are planning to have a yard sale the second weekend in May(5-9-15). If the weather is bad prior to that (rain), we will have to do it the next weekend. Yard sales are always iffy until almost the last minute!

Collect all your unwanted goods, get them priced, get a table or tent ready, a chair, money box with plenty of change too! Remember if selling clothing (which I have had great luck with in the past), price it and put a size on it - i.e. jeans size 32/34. Plus size clothing sells well as does men's clothing! Baby things do well as well. Hanging does better than on a table and sized does better than everything thrown together. If anyone has ideas on how to can do clothing GREAT, let me know! We are planning for a wonderful day!

Lisa

Deed Restrictions are available anytime at the office. That way people know what they can and cannot do on their property.

Have a GREAT day!
We have a beautiful neighborhood here.
Thanks all, Lisa

Introducing the People who work for you in Harbor Point...

I hope you are enjoying the interviews of the people who work for you in Harbor Point. So far we have met our paid employees (office, maintenance and guards). I would like to personally apologize to Cheryl Nagle for excluding her from the interviews with the guards. She has been a dedicated employee on the gate for 7 1/2 years. I did not want to bother her while she was recovering from a hospital stay and should have asked her before excluding her from the stories.

After the POA board elections in May we will feature our board members, who are not financially reimbursed for the huge amount of time and work they do for you. Kay

TOMATO PLANTS

Is it ever too early to be thinking about your tomato plants? Not if you're the competitive tomato gardening type who wants the earliest and sweetest tomato on the block. Unfortunately, growing great tomatoes doesn't just happen. Don't Crowd Seedlings. If you are starting tomatoes from seed, be sure to give the seedlings plenty of room to branch out. Crowded conditions inhibit their growth, so transplant them into their own individual 4 in. pot, shortly after they get their first true leaves. Provide Lots of Light. Tomato seedlings need strong, direct light. Days are short during winter, so even placing them near a very sunny window may not provide them with sufficient natural light. Unless you are growing them in a greenhouse, your best option is to use some type of artificial plant lighting, for 14-18 hours every day. To ensure the plants grow stocky, not spindly, keep the young plants only a couple of inches from florescent grow lights. You will need to raise the lights (or lower the plants) as the seedlings grow. When you're ready to plant them outside, choose the sunniest part of your vegetable garden. Put a Fan on Your Seedlings. It seems tomato plants need to move and sway in the breeze, to develop strong stems. That happens naturally outdoors, but if you are growing your seedlings inside, provide a breeze by turning a fan on them for 5-10 minutes, twice a day. Another option is to ruffle them by gently rubbing your hand back and forth across their tops for a few minutes, several times a day. It's a bit more effort, but their wonderful tomato scent will rub off on you, as a bonus. Preheat the Soil in Your Garden. Tomatoes love heat. Cover the planting area with black or red plastic a couple of weeks before you intend to plant. Those extra degrees of soil warmth will translate into earlier tomatoes. Bury Them. Plant your tomato plants deeper than they come in the pot, all the way up to the top few leaves. When planted this way, tomatoes are able to develop roots all along their stems. And more roots will make for a stronger plant. You can either dig a deep hole or simply dig a shallow trench and lay the plant sideways. It will quickly straighten itself up and grow toward the sun. Just be careful not to drive your stake or cage into the buried stem. Mulch Later. Hold off on mulching until after the ground has had a chance to warm up. While mulching does conserve water and prevents the soil and soil born diseases from splashing up on the plants, if you put it down too early it will also shade and therefore cool the soil. Try using plastic mulch for heat lovers like tomatoes and peppers. Remove the Bottom Leaves. Once your tomato plants reach about 3 ft. tall, remove the leaves from the bottom 1 ft. of stem. These are the oldest leaves and they are usually the first leaves to develop fungus problems. As the plants fill out, the bottom leaves get the least amount of sun and air circulation. And being close to the ground, soil born pathogens can easily splash up onto them. Spraying weekly with compost tea also seems to be effective at warding off fungus diseases. Pinch & Prune for More Tomatoes . Pinch and remove suckers that develop in the crotch joint of two branches. They won't bear fruit and will take energy away from the rest of the plant. But go easy on pruning the rest of the plant. You can thin out a few leaves to allow the sun to reach the ripening fruit, but it's the leaves that are photosynthesizing and creating the sugars that give flavor to your tomatoes. Water the Tomato Plants Regularly. Water deeply and regularly while the plants are developing. Irregular watering, (missing a week and trying to make up for it), leads to blossom end rot and cracking. The rule of thumb is to ensure your plants get at least 1 in. of water per week, but during hot, dry spells, they may need more. If your plants start to look wilted for most of the day, give them a drink. Once the fruit begins to ripen, you can ease up on watering. Lessening the water will coax the plant into concentrating its sugars, for better flavor.. Don't withhold water so much that the plants continually wilt and become stressed or they will drop their blossoms and possibly their fruit. Getting Them to Set Tomatoes. A lot of vegetable gardening is at the mercy of the weather, but sometimes we can help things along. There are two types of tomato plants. Determinate tomatoes reach a certain height and then set and ripen their fruit all at one time, making a large quantity available when you're ready to make sauce. These tend to start flowering fairly early in the season and shouldn't be a problem getting them to set fruit, unless weather conditions are unfavorable and cause a condition aptly named "blossom drop". Those big, juicy beefsteak tomatoes we all crave grow on indeterminate plants. By indeterminate, they mean the plants just keep growing. Tomatoes are vines, after all, and indeterminate tomatoes reach for the sun. They like to grow tall before they start setting fruits. If you're impatient, pinching off the tips of the main stems in early summer will encourage them to start putting their energy into flowering. This is also a handy trick toward the end of the summer, when you want the last tomatoes to hurry up and ripen.

Well friends and neighbors, in my opinion, the SUPER BOWL game this year was one of the best ever. It was very competitive, very exciting, and also ended with a mysterious surprise. As all the experts say, one play can change a game from the expected to the unexpected. I saw 3(three) consecutive game changing plays at the end of the game. The first was the miracle juggling catch by the Seahawks at the 3yd. line. The second was the pass play called on the 1/2yd line. The third was the Seahawks jumping off-sides when they had a chance for a safety. The penalty gave the Patriots room to safely take a knee and end the game. Anyway, the team that everyone loves to hate, won again. Again, in my opinion, it was one of the best ever SUPER BOWLS. Sometimes I wonder if there might be outside forces that influence games such as this. No, that could never happen, could it?? The Houston Texans receiver Andre' Johnson is unhappy again. It seems like they don't want to pay him what he expects because of the salary cap. I'm sure that Andre' will find a team willing to take him. We'll see! Good luck Andre'!! The Houston Rockets are off with a red glare in the second half of the season with a 37-18 record. Coach McHale is hoping to keep his team healthy and headed down the road to a championship. We'll have to wait and see. The new Houston Astros manager, A.J.Hinch, says they will have to develop a strong team chemistry to be successful. Let's all hope they find that strong chemical bond and have a great season. The weather this month has been mostly dreadful and has been this way and much worse over most of the country. Let us all bow our heads and say a prayer that it will soon be over. Happy days are almost here again! That's all for this month.

This is your friendly neighbor

Y'all have a good one!!

DOGWOOD TREES

The delicate four-point blossom represents Jesus' suffering on the cross. Four white petals form a cross shape and surround the crown of thorns in the middle, tinged red to symbolize the blood of Christ. At the petal tips are red points, symbolizing blood from the nails that held Jesus' hands and feet. Blossoming at Easter, the flowers remind the faithful of Jesus' death and resurrected life.

Dogwoods are a favorite ornamental tree of homeowners thanks to their modest size and four-season appeal. In spring, these native trees (Cornus florida), which grow only to 20 to 30 feet, explode with white (or sometimes pink or red) bracts centered with small clusters of yellow flowers, shouting that winter is finally over. Dogwoods prefer partial sun and nutrient-rich, well-drained soil. The white flowering dogwood (Cornus florida) is a common deciduous tree occurring throughout the eastern half of the United States. It is a common ornamental landscape tree that offers something nice throughout the year.

The tree provides showy white flowers in spring, rich green foliage in summer, bright red leaves in fall and red berries relished by birds and animals all winter.

The white petals of the dogwood flower are actually leaf-like growths called bracts rather than true petals. The actual flowers are in the cluster at the center of the dogwood bloom. The showy bracts can attract pollinating insects to the flowers. Flowering white dogwood grows in U.S. Department of Agriculture hardiness zones 5 through 9. It does best in well-drained, moist, acidic soil that is rich in organic matter. It prefers partial sun. When planting new dogwoods, keep the trees well watered during their first two years. Dogwoods will grow in poor, dry, rocky or clay alkaline soils in full sun. However, the trees won't be vigorous and will be more vulnerable to diseases and pests. Alice
